More room for what matters.

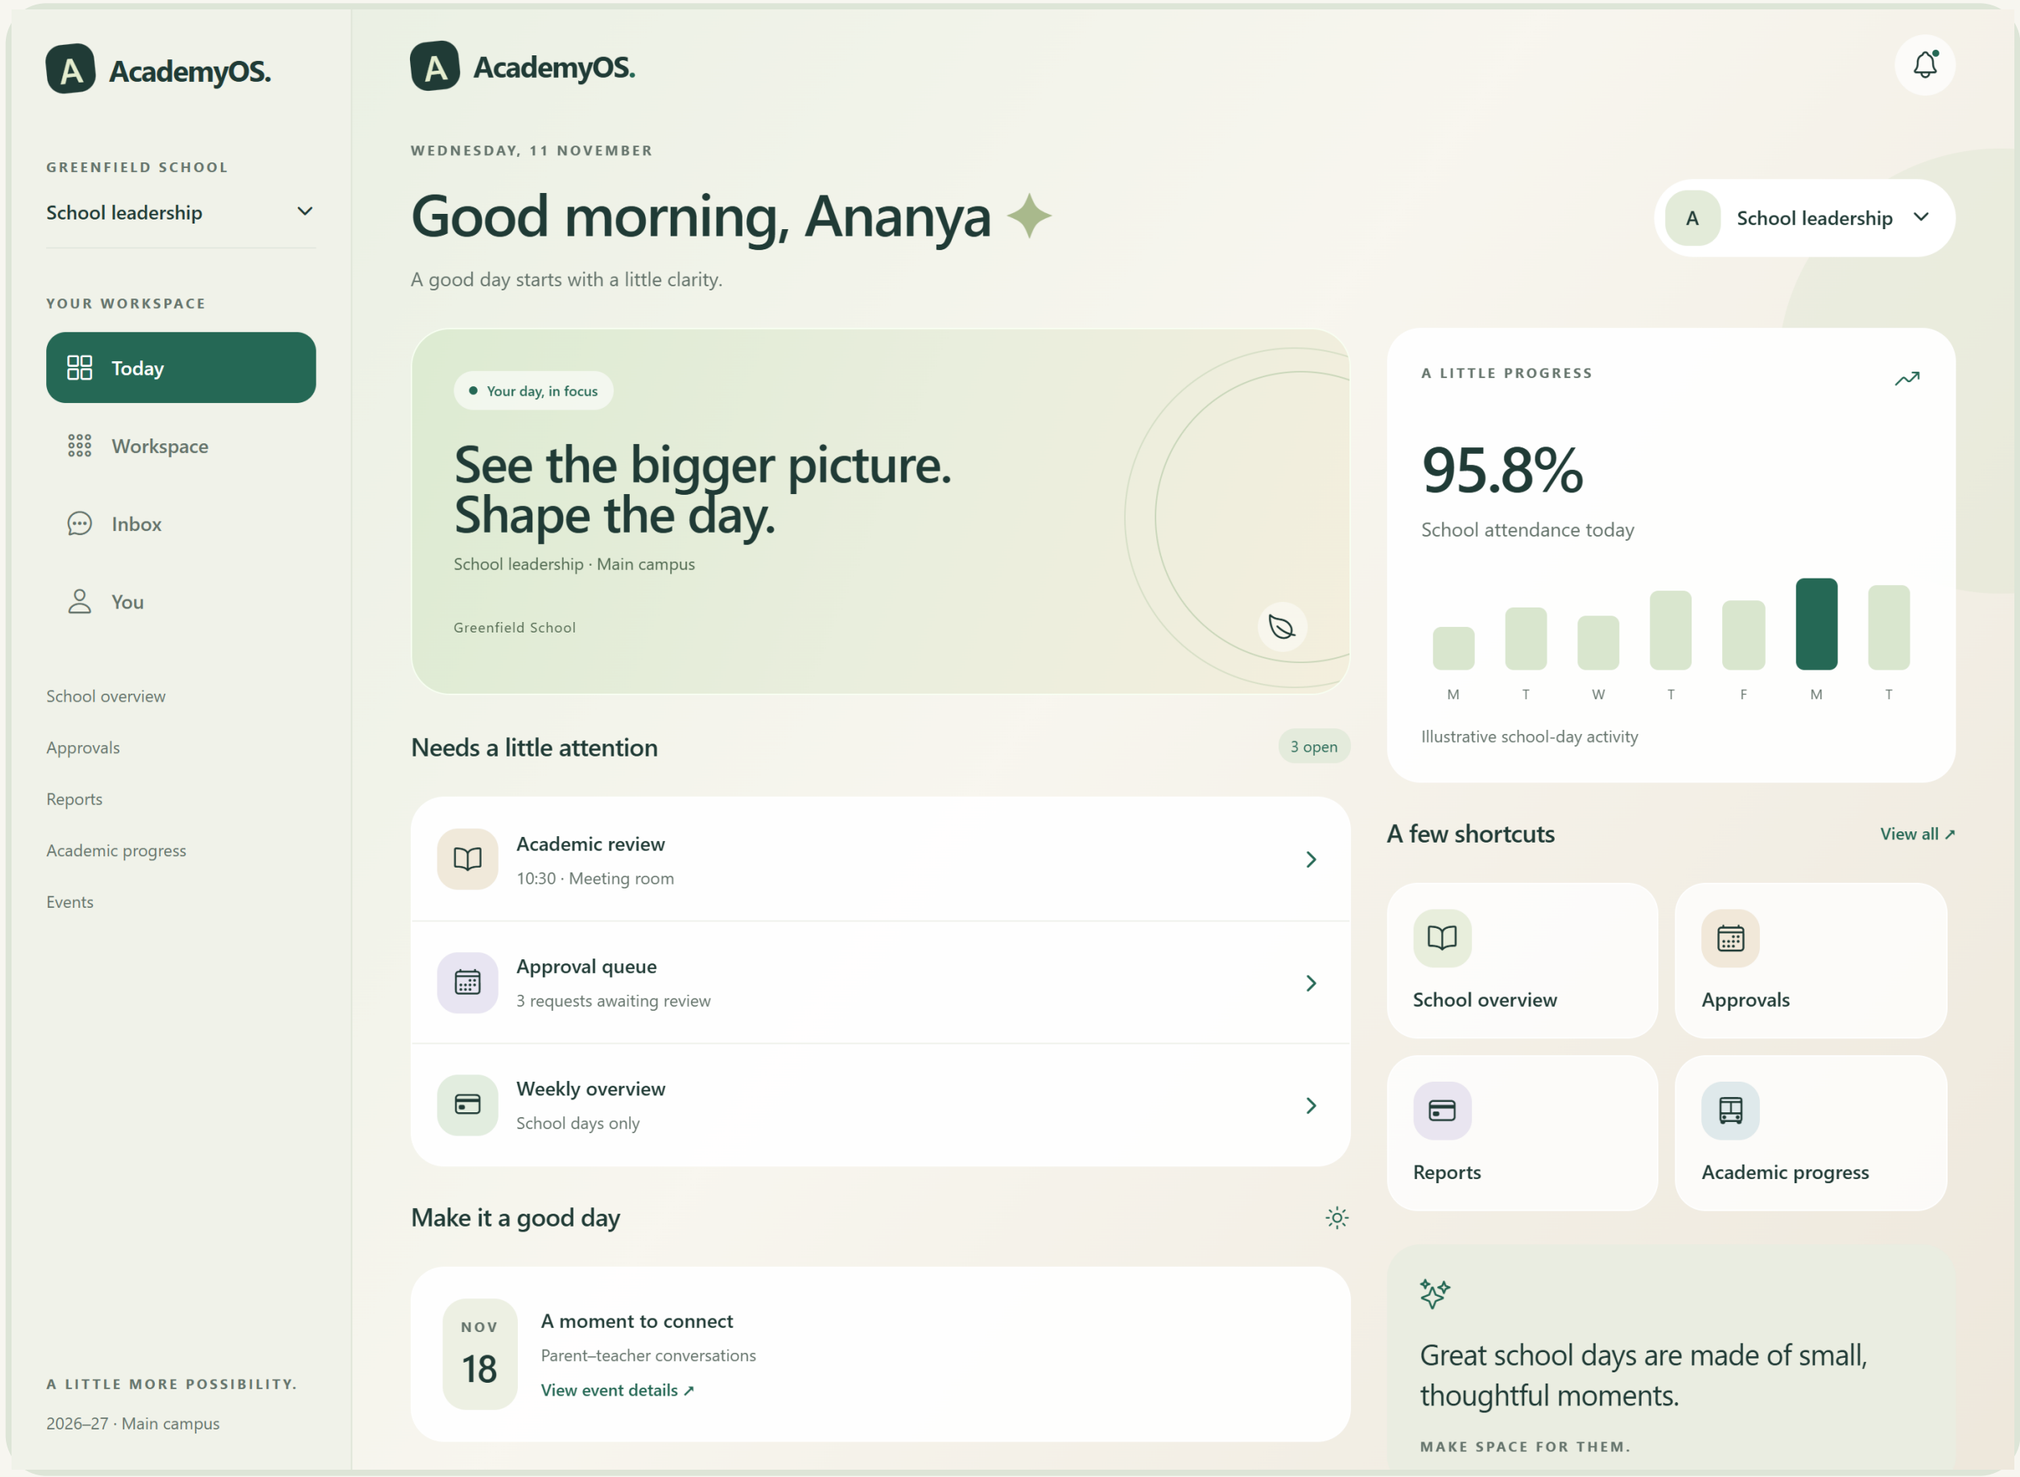

A calmer desktop workspace. A more personal school day in your pocket.

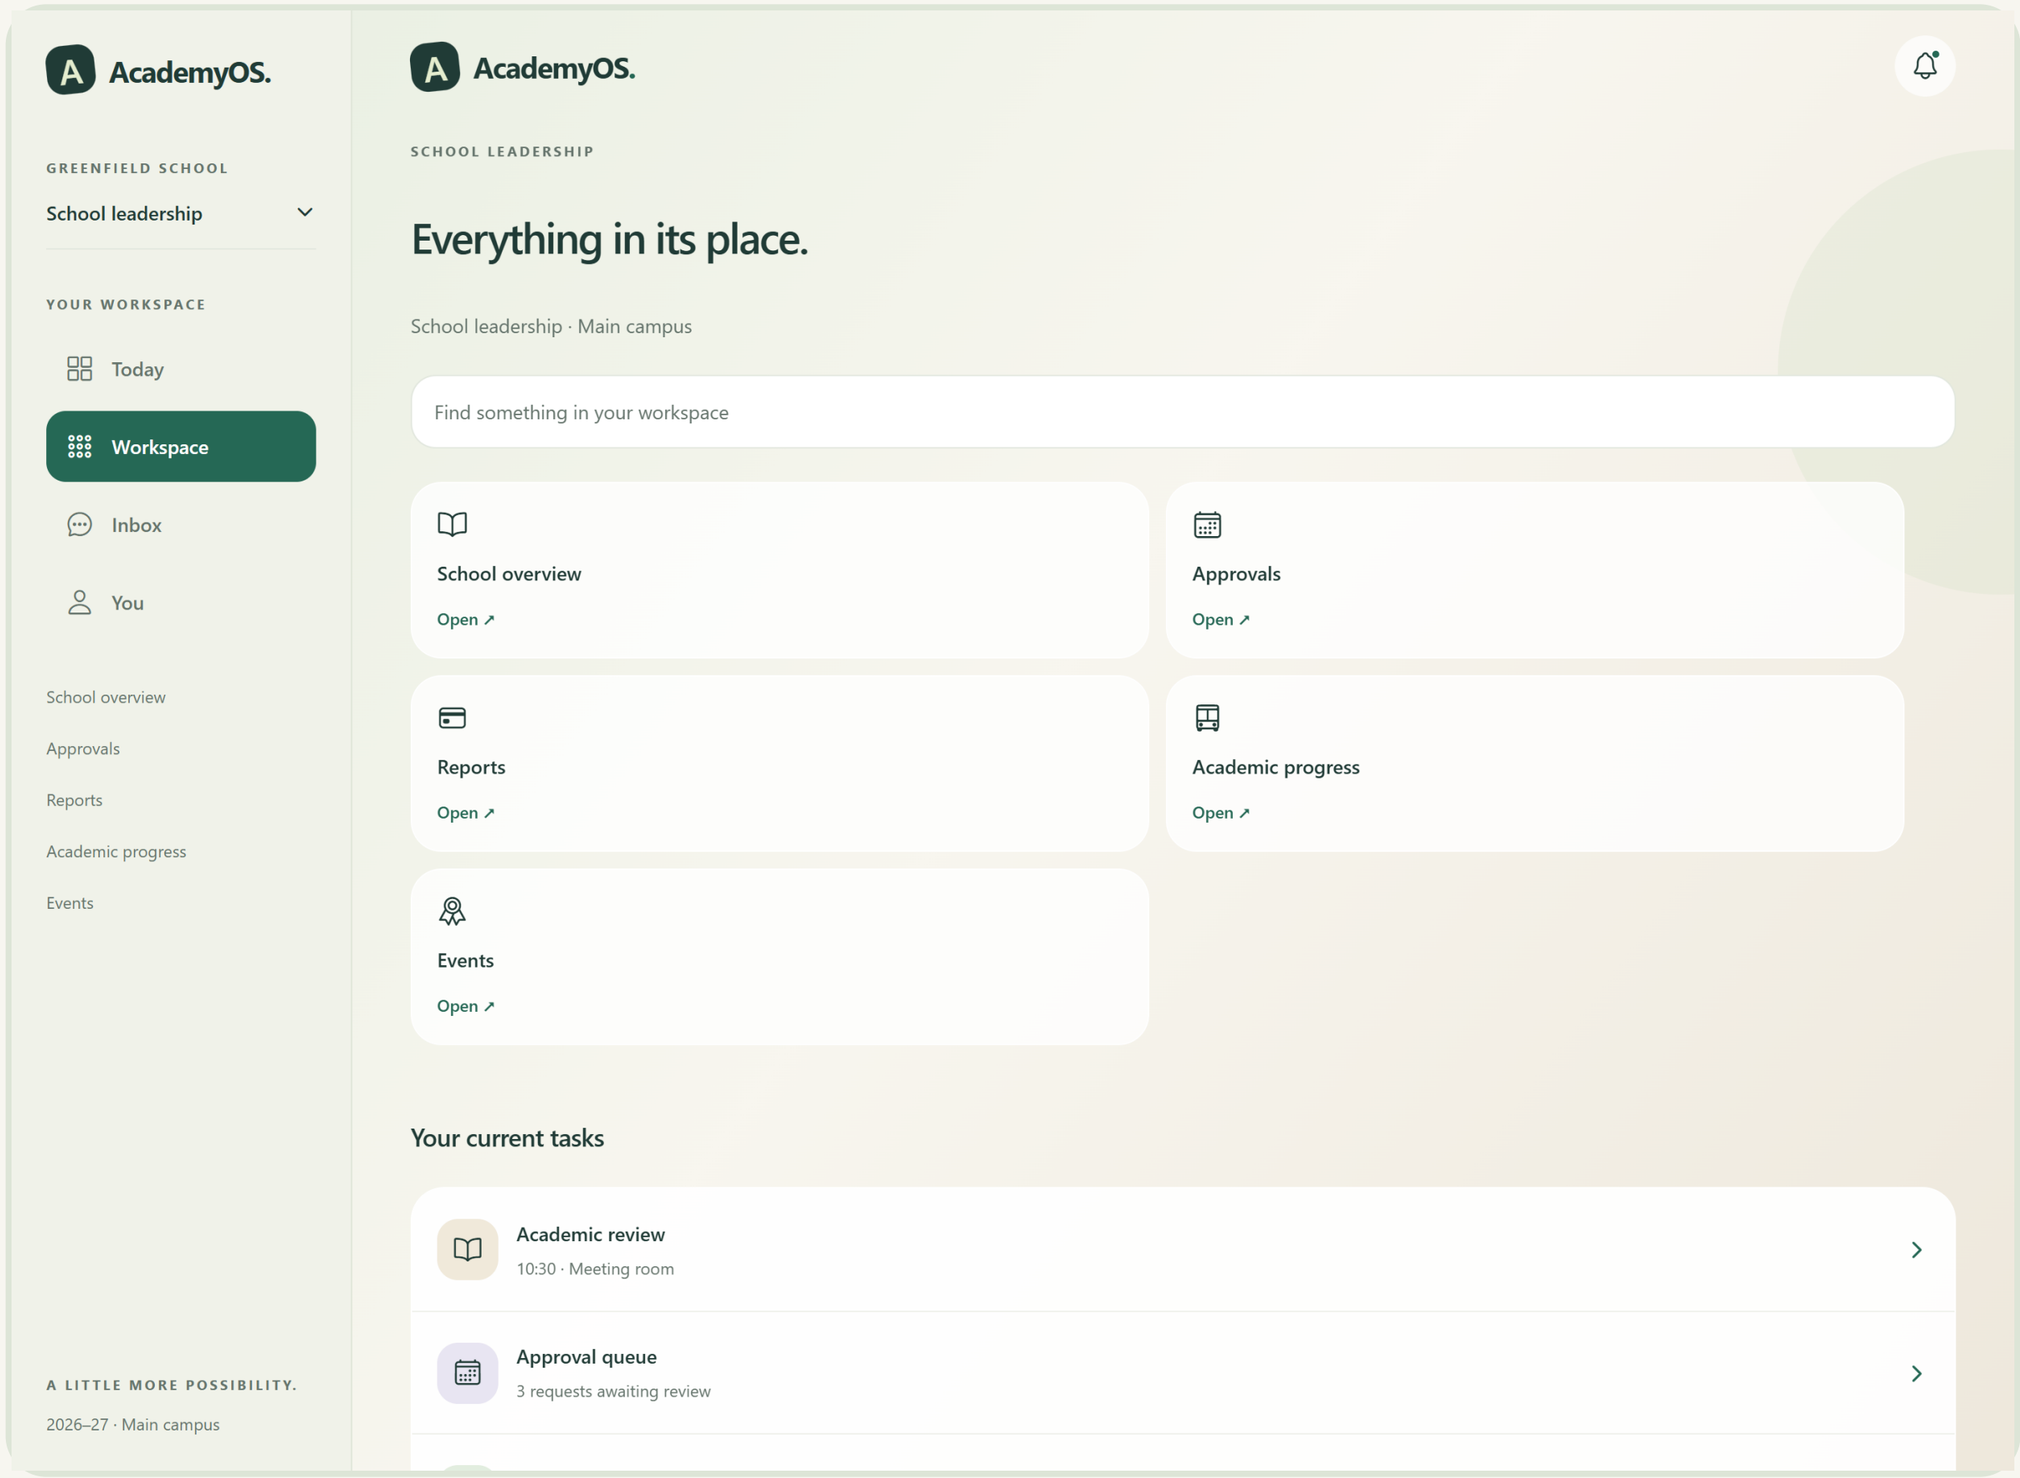

01 / The desktop, reconsidered.

An open workspace, purposeful colour, generous type and a hierarchy that makes the next action obvious.

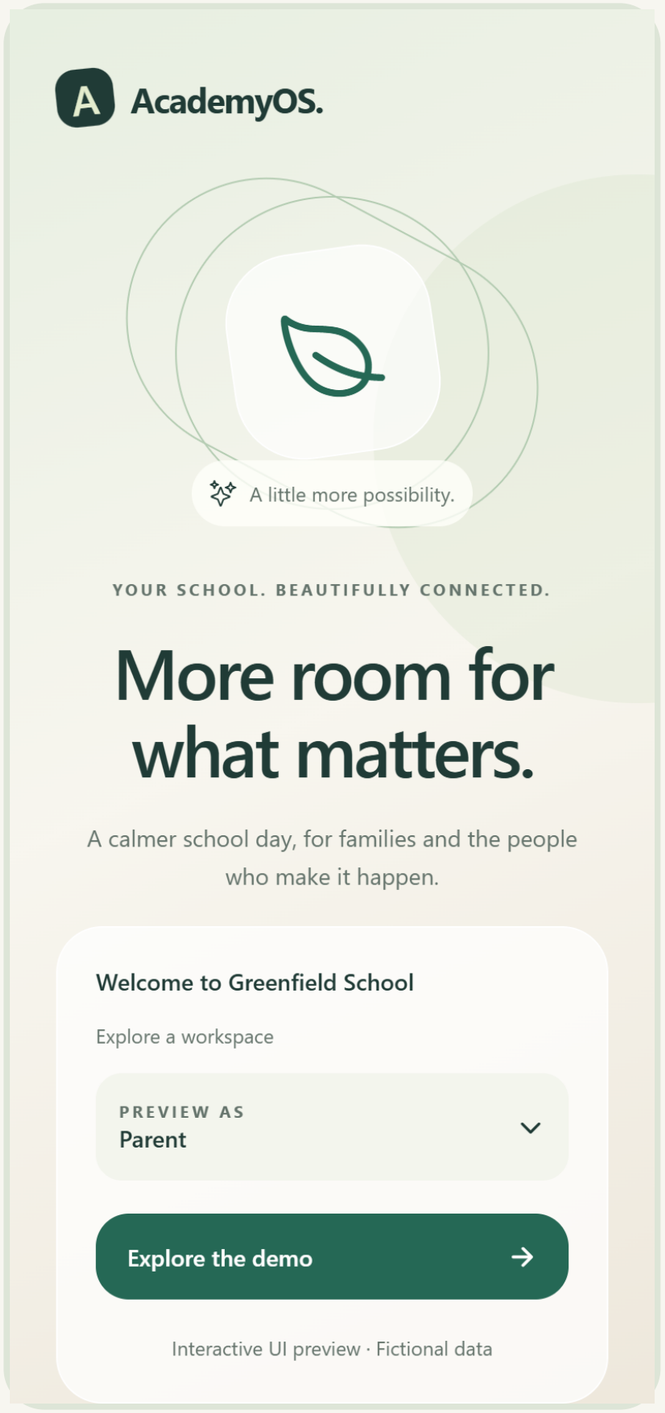

02 / A place for everything.

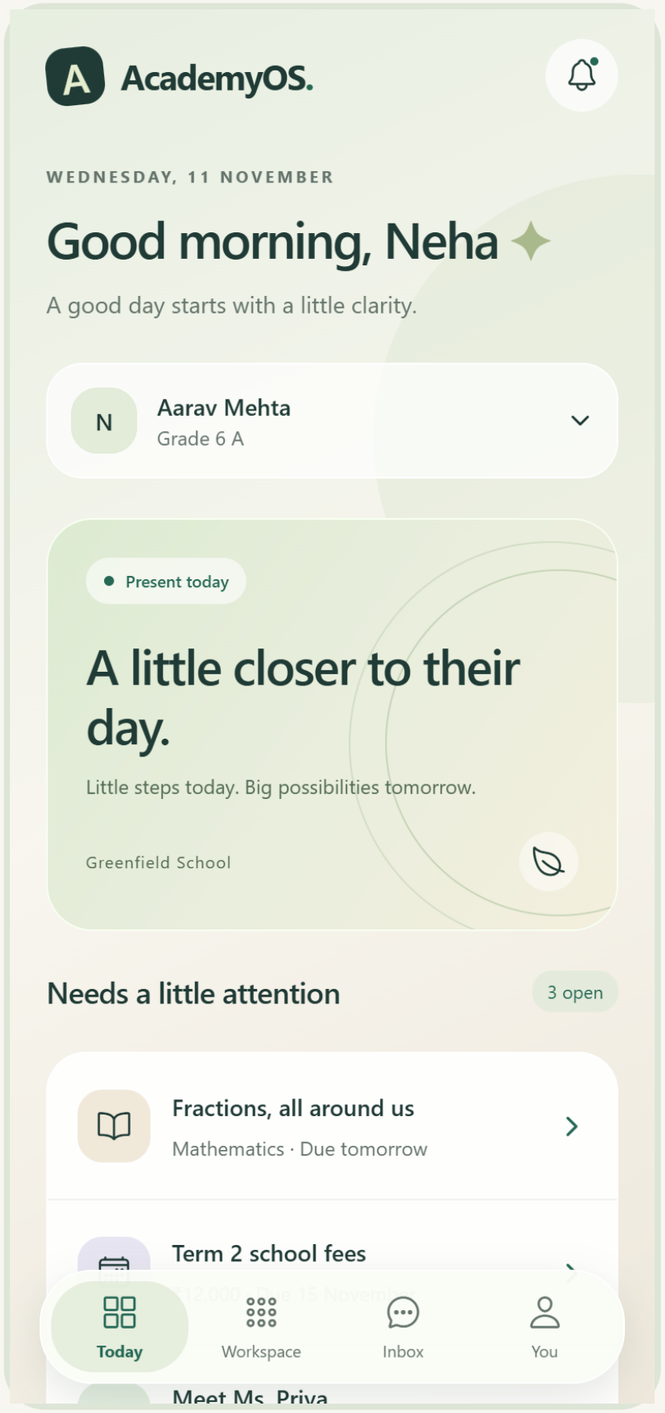

Role-aware navigation brings the relevant school modules together without exposing platform controls.

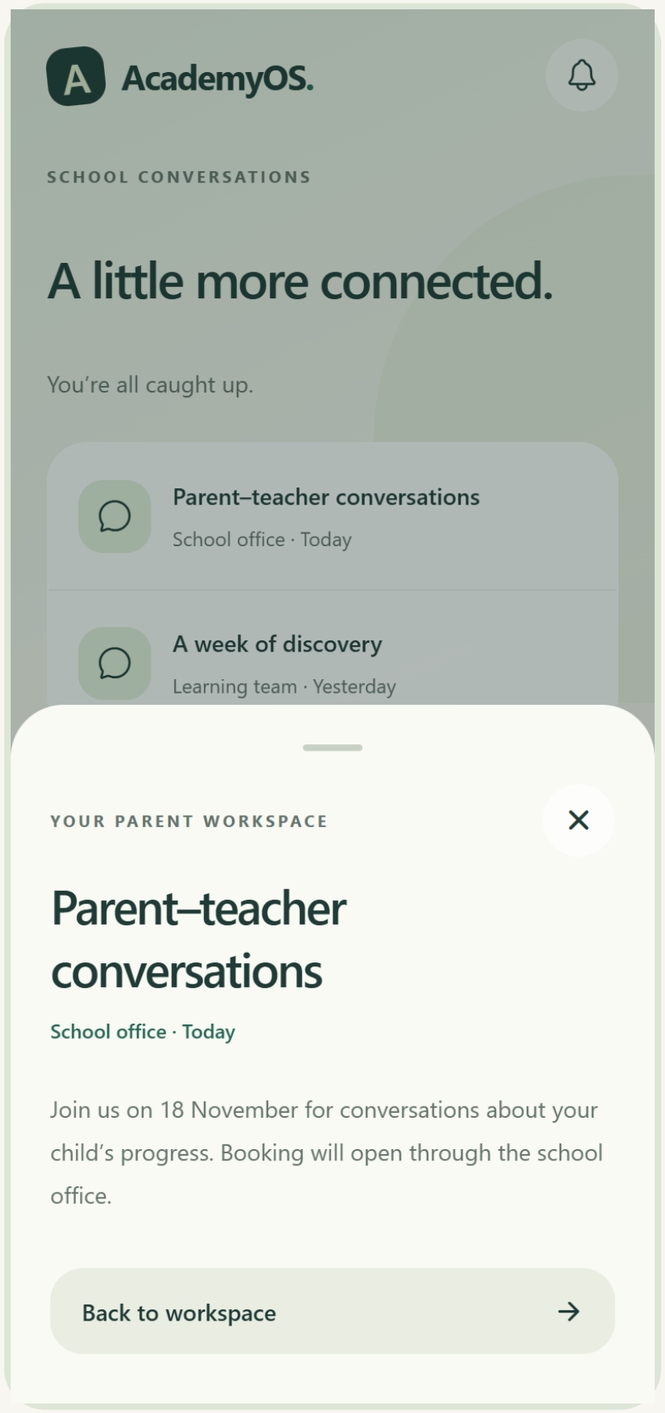

03 / A welcoming first moment.

One visual language, from a quiet welcome screen to focused conversations.

Quiet surfaces

White content cards, soft colour in summary cards, and glass reserved for the floating navigation. Borders supply separation without heavy shadows.

Native material, honest fallbacks

The Expo source uses BlurView on iOS. Reduced Transparency, Android and web receive a readable near-opaque surface. This is Apple-inspired glass, not a claim of native Liquid Glass.

Type, touch and layout

System typography; 12–16 px content, 18–31 px headings. 44 px minimum icon controls, 52 px primary buttons. Desktop sidebar from 1000 px; compact bottom navigation below it.

Scope of this handoff

Desktop blueprint: 23 static screen concepts. Expo: 18 role workspaces, shared navigation and local interactions. Authentication, real records, payment, messaging, uploads and approval workflows require backend implementation.
